told the House the other day, "that if even our hearts urged us to do it, that 135,000,-000 people can maintain the internal sconomy of 500,000,000 people and more of the British empire. I do not think that our 135,000.000 people can maintain the internal economy of 457,000,000 Chinese and 170,000,000 Soviets. In other words, the United States cannot maintain the internal economy for 1,127,000,000 people and fight a global war successfully without breaking up internally. You do not find any evidence in the hearings or in the lend-lease reports that we are maintaining the civilian economies of the United Nations. The weasle-worded lendlease reports hide all of this international W. P. A. program that the Lend-Lease Administration has started and Congress, in its innocence and trust, has been taken four days. Body lice are carriers of typhus.

Representative Jones assailed the excuse that lease-lend has been operating "in reverse"-that is, that much of the bread cast upon the waters has floated back. Jones, it would be well to dig down into the facts about lend-lease. As he says, there is a limit of spending and rehabilitation, or reforming, beyond which this nation simply cannot go, and that limit should be defined before we crack up under the burden it appears to impose.

Then the Americans have discovered that methyl bromide is a miraculous killer of both lice and louse eggs, in clothing. Steam chambers had to be used in World War 1. But now a soldier's clothing, packed as tightly as possible inside his barrack bag, can be put in a box filled with methyl bromide vapor, and within an hour every cootie and its eggs will be dead clear to the vaccine, developed by this officer of the public health service. Tried in mild doses in the Orient, it did not prevent typhus, but none of the vaccinated patients died. Now the army has a more concentrated form of this vaccine, under trial at Cairo.

Thus has medical science developed under the free enterprise system in this country-and these discoveries supply another argument in favor of continuing it and in opposition to the socialized scheme of governmental control of medical care

DAIRY INTERESTS attribute the butter shortage to seasonal decreases in milk production, the fact that the government has 235,000,000 pounds in storage, the public's increased buying power, unequal distribution and the lack of national price or rationing control for cream. Added to these reasons is the depletion of dairy herds. Thousands of owners of small dairy farms have sold their cattle for beef and gone into war industries.

The dairy people believe that the wholly unsatisfactory conditions could be corrected by providing adequate manpower for dairy farmers, making machinery and other equipment available, adjusting dairy prices, rationing butter as an item separate from other fats and removing the subsidy with which the food officials are trying to stimulate production.

'Take off the butter subsidy," one dairy official insists. "Farmers don't want it and it saves the average American only sixty cents a year, if he can buy his ration allotment of twelve pounds of butter. Why put off paying our national grocery bill? Each of us will pay much more than the cost of the subsidy in years to come, in taxes, interest and handling charges." In an effort to increase the butter supply, food officials are urging farm women to make more butter at home and take it to market. Country butter has been given a lower point value to stimulate sales. When cream brings a higher price as cream than it does as butter, the futility of this scheme is obvious. The problem is one that can be solved only through an understanding of the dairy farmers' imperative

Unless realism enters the butter picture, and soon, the butter shortage seems certain to become even more critical.

The Opportunity In the Balkans

IF the Germans are beaten at the Dnieper, it should convince the Balkan satellites that the Nazi cause is hopeless and strengthen their growing desire to obtain the best terms possible from the Allies. They now know that the German army cannot save them from either Anglo-American or Russian invasion.

The latter prospect is not relished. especially by Hungary and Rumania. A situation is thus created which opens great opportunities to the Allies in the Balkans. It is doubtful if an invasion by the Allies would be seriously resisted.

One development that may be holding the Balkans in line is Hitler's harsh treatment of the Italians under his domination. This undoubtedly has been designed by the Nazis to show the Balkans the fate that might befall them if they wavered.

Allied success in Italy within a re able time, and the rescue of the greater part of that peninsula, including Rome, from German occupation might go far toward swinging the Balkan states over. Greece, Albania and Jugoslavia are eager for Allied invasion and ready to aid in its success. The attitude of the other states may not be long in doubt.

Your Own North Star

By MARSHALL MASLIN

You look up from the warm dark earth and you search in the tangle of stars for one familiar There is no moon to dim the myriad points of lights. You can see them all in this luminous night. There lies the Milky Way across your heaven. There shine the Seven Sisters, though your eyes are too weak to count them all. . . And there's a red

And that's the only way I am able to find the good North Star. I seek the Dipper and I find Merak and Dubhe and from them I find the star that counts the most, that tells me my way and has brought many a sailor out of storm and into his home port at last.

There are so many stars, there are so many little points of light, there is so much advice and so many theories about how a man should live and the way he should go; and though he have a North Star in his own breast it is sometimes so dim that with all his wayward searching he cannot find it surely

He needs two other points to sight his soul In the heavens there are Merak and Dubhe. In himself there may be Courage and They may be Faith and Patience. They may be Strength and Kindness. Japs Lack Shipping

Truk, like Rabaul, cost the Japanese many millions of dollars and much labor. Now Rabaul is being destroyed by a systematic air attack and the worst part of it for the Japanese is that they do not have the shipping or the materials to repair or rebuild the base. Our big navy, moreover, is just waiting for the Japanese to send an expedition down to repair the destruction at Rabaul, That would be one way of making the Japanese come out and fight. It is an open secret that the Japanese have withdrawn the bulk of their fleet to the mandated islands, which are excellent for hiding purposes. Why Taxes Are High From the Pittsburgh Press

The Washingtonian was tellinly, over lunch, why he was on leave looking for a job in private industry, though he now is receiving from a government agency the highest salary he ever attained.

"I like the work." he said, "and I think it is of major importance. It is being carried out efficiently intelligently, and without politics. I like my associates and my superor. If I fnd another job, probably it will involve a reduction in my income. "But here's the difficulty. I haven't anything to do. Circumstances have changed since I went to Washington a year ago, and our agency now can carry out its duties with less manpower. Much of the time I sit around with nothing to do-and I'm not old enough, yet, to enjoy that.

Repeal of the Chinese Exclusion act, requested by President Roosevelt, is expected to come before the House next week. There is some opposition to the repeal. But it is safe to say that nine-tenths of the opposition is based on almost fantastic misunderstanding of the nature of the repeal an exclusion act-it is not a mere immigration restriction act, nor immigration quota act. The Exlusion act stands apart from the immigration restriction acts, with which the public is familiar. They found jobs almost monopolized by the Chinese-on the early Pacific coast railroads, more than half the employes were Chinese. The Chinese worked for lower wages, had a lower standard of living, than American labor could compete with. Presently there were ugly riots in San Francisco, and as far east as Denver. Hull, Eden and Molotov will talk politics and postwar arrangements between the United States, Great Britain and Soviet Russia. The war pow-wow will await the first meeting between Roosevelt, Churchill

The Russians would like the big meeting to be held in Moscow, and are holding out for it. Do not expect the conference to be held in Moscow, however. It will be somewhere near Russia, but not in Russia itself. There's a tricky bit of protocol at the bottom. The president is a head of state, while Churchill and Stalin, who actually run Britain and Russia, still are premiers. King George VI is the British head of state and little known Soviet President Kalinin, the head of state in Russia. It is o. k. for Churchill to go to Moscow to confer with Stalin, but for President Roosevelt to go there for a joint conference with Stalin and Churchill would be a sort of "hat in the hand" gesture. Therefore, look for the "Big Three" meet-

Lend-Lease Scope

MANY MONTHS AGO, when Representative Robert F. Jones, of Ohio, questioned huge appropriations for lend-lease and urged a closer inspection of their disposition, he was assailed as unpatriotic and a war program obstructionist. But the reports given by the five senators who visited the war theaters over the world have indleated that Representative Jones was neither and that his sincerity of purpose

Representative Jones has given some rather startling information to the House, and incidentally the public, about the littleknown operations of lend-lease. He has disclosed that more than sixty-five billions has been devoted to it, and his misgivings as to its scope are well-founded by the information furnished. When the last six billions was appropriated, without an eyeblink, Representative Jones said the understanding was that it was for the purpose of maintaining the civilian economy of the United Nations, and particularly Great Britain. But it has been extended across the globe with forty-six nations now en-
